Our History

For more than 75 years, The Bath Hotel has been lovingly cared for by the same family, creating a legacy of warm hospitality, timeless elegance, and cherished memories. As we celebrate this remarkable milestone, we reflect on the rich history that has shaped this iconic seaside destination while looking forward to an exciting future.

Originally opening its doors in 1878, the beautiful Victorian building has long been at the heart of Lynmouth's story. In May 1951, just one year before the historic flood, Mr. and Mrs. Braunton proudly became its custodians, beginning a family tradition that continues to this day.

In its earliest years, the building served as a distinguished Victorian Bath House. Visitors travelled from across the country to experience the renowned health benefits of seawater bathing, with fresh salt water pumped directly from the iconic Rhenish Tower overlooking the harbour. As the Victorian passion for restorative sea bathing flourished, the Bath House naturally evolved into the elegant hotel that stands today.

Throughout the decades, each generation has carefully preserved the character of this historic landmark while thoughtfully embracing change. What was once known as The Sun Lounge in the 1950s has been beautifully reimaged into the welcoming space our guests enjoy today—a reflection of our commitment to honouring the past while creating exceptional experiences for generations to come.
